Michael James – Technology Consulting Director

With extensive experience across the financial services sector Michael has a breadth of knowledge in strategy, architecture, delivery and has a keen eye on the business. This breadth and depth has helped him maintain a track record of delivering IT solutions in complex environments for the financial services industry.

Michael operates confidently and effectively at both strategic and operational levels. He is also a technology influencer that creates positive business outcomes at all levels. Bringing pragmatism and good problem solving to clients, he balances new technology, strategy and governance against delivery and agility to bring early concepts to the table, then into reality. Since joining Altus, Michael has helped clients define architectural approaches for customer propositions, driven the delivery of new applications for customers over new and legacy platforms and advised on many levels in mobile, integration, delivery architecture and risk.
